1. Background

The Land Restoration Fund (LRF) is Queensland's $500 million investment in land sector carbon projects that deliver positive impacts or 'co-benefits' for the environment and Queensland communities.

The Land Restoration Fund (the LRF) builds on the Australian Government's regulatory framework for generating Australian Carbon Credit Units (ACCUs). ACCUs are tradeable financial products regulated by the Commonwealth Clean Energy Regulator. The LRF has as its primary objective to facilitate a pipeline of projects that generate ACCUs with environmental, social, economic and First Nations co-benefits.

The Department of Environment and Science has engaged the Queensland Rural and Industry Development Authority (QRIDA) to deliver a financial assistance scheme as well as establish and maintain a directory of Approved Advisers to assist land managers to explore new potential business opportunities offered by carbon farming. Assistance will only be available to those land managers who seek professional advice on undertaking a carbon farming project/s from Approved Advisers listed on the QRIDA website.

Applications to become an Approved Adviser are sought from those who hold the relevant skills, qualifications and experience. QRIDA does not expect or endorse Approved Advisers to provide advice outside their area of expertise.

Approved Advisers will be selected by the Department of Environment and Science.

This document provides information for applicants applying to be an Approved Adviser to deliver advice to land managers for the Carbon Farming Advice Scheme (the Scheme).

2. Objective

The objective of Approved Advisers under the Carbon Farming Advice Scheme is to provide land holders relevant advice within an adviser's area of expertise about undertaking carbon farming project/s on their land under the Land Restoration Fund.

3. About the Program

To ensure professional advice meets the requirements of the Carbon Farming Advice Scheme, Approved Advisers will be selected by the Department of Environment of Science.

Advice provided under the Scheme is required to be specific and tailored to the property in question and the land manager's specific circumstances. Approved Advisers must have appropriate qualifications to provide advice on carbon farming initiatives within their area of expertise.

The level of advice provided should be proportionate with the advice required by a land holder. (For example, if it is apparent a land holder would not be eligible to complete a carbon farming project the advice should be limited to this extent).

Some examples of the type of advice that would be covered under the Scheme are listed below to assist you in understanding the different delivery requirements Approved Advisers, will be providing.

Queensland Rural and Industry Development Authority

You should note, the types of advice covered under the Scheme may be expanded and changed – QRIDA and the Department of Environment and Science will keep Approved Advisers updated on any changes.

As part of this advice, invoices issued are to only be for the service related to the Scheme.

4. Advice Requirements

Eligible advice from an Approved Adviser must be related to at least one of the following:

1. Details about carbon farming including the regulatory framework and approved methods.
2. Details about the Land Restoration Fund including its investment approach and co-benefits framework.
3. Details related to the specific location of the land holder including:
 - (a) land tenure restrictions and requirements including eligible interest holder consent;
 - (b) likely establishment and ongoing management requirements;
 - (c) potential methods that might apply and potential co-benefits;
 - (d) indicative cost benefit analysis; or
 - (e) consideration of climate change impact on the viability of the project.
4. Details that could influence the decision to participate in a carbon farming project, including:
 - (a) legal issues and considerations; or
 - (b) financial impacts and considerations.

More information on the above topics forms part of the required training, which can be accessed from <https://apps.des.qld.gov.au/lrf-training/>

Adviser report information requirements

Eligible advice from an Approved Adviser must include the following:

1. Reports and invoices should have a mandatory property information section that clearly identifies:
 - (a) the land title/location details including the number of properties included in an assessment and the name of each property assessed
 - (b) the land holder details (name, ABN etc), which should be the same person submitting the invoice
 - (c) the trust fund or business names linked to the properties/invoices
 - (d) type of business/property (cattle, cropping, mixed, etc).
2. Itemised invoices that identify:
 - (a) report type

Applicants should submit a completed application form through QRIDA's application portal.

Applicants are encouraged to apply on the QRIDA website at any time throughout the duration of the Program.

Queensland Rural and Industry Development Authority

Applicants will need to demonstrate that they have met the objectives of the Approved Advisers and will be assessed against the Carbon Farming Advice Scheme Approved Adviser Criteria.

The application process is summarised below:

1. Lodge a completed application form through QRIDA's application portal
2. QRIDA will provide an acknowledgement receipt
3. The Department of Environment and Science decision maker will determine a successful application
4. QRIDA will advise the applicant of the decision
5. Applicant will accept invitation to be an Approved Adviser
6. A profile for the applicant as an Approved Adviser will be created
7. QRIDA will update the Approved Adviser list and place the profile on the QRIDA website

9. Conditions

There are no costs to apply for, or be registered as, an Approved Adviser.

Ongoing support and training will be offered by the Land Restoration Fund team within the Department of Environment and Science, and it is expected that Advisers will attend when offered.

10. Review Process

QRIDA is committed to ensuring access to appropriate avenues of review for applicants who are dissatisfied with the outcome of their application.

11. Suspending or cancelling Approved Adviser status

QRIDA will advise the Approved Adviser, in writing, where a decision has been taken to suspend or cancel membership as an Approved Adviser. This letter will detail the reasons and justification which informed this decision.

Cancellation or suspension of the Approved Adviser may be based on failure to continue to meet the eligibility (based on Section 5).

The Approved Adviser will be provided the opportunity to make written representation as to why their Approved Adviser should not be suspended or cancelled and should seek to discuss the decision in the first instance with QRIDA.

Should the Approved Adviser wish to do so, a request for an internal review of the decision can be made.

An application for an internal review is to be in writing and follows the same appeals process as a declined application.
