Section 7 – Arm's length engagement

A contract or other agreement is at 'arm's length' when it is made by two parties acting freely and independently of each other, and without offering favour as a result of an interpersonal or commercial relationship (e.g. being related, friends, or business partners in another enterprise) or for another benefit. The terms of the contract should be commercially reasonable, and the contract price should not be deflated or inflated compared to the fair market price.

Collusion occurs when two or more parties work together to deflate or inflate the value or otherwise misrepresent the terms or circumstances of an agreement as the result of a relationship or for another benefit (i.e. it is not at 'arm's length'). A relationship of benefit may create the perception of collusion or present the risk of collusion in an existing relationship.

The perception of collusion can be addressed by demonstrating that the contract, quote, invoice or other agreement is commercially reasonable by providing comparable quotes from other suppliers/contractors to demonstrate it is at a fair market price.

Relevant relationships must be declared to QRIDA upon application or notified at the very earliest opportunity. Failing to declare these relationships would be a breach of QRIDA's guideline which may result in your application being declined and potentially deemed dishonest.

Do you have a relationship with or have you received a benefit from another party or parties (retailer, supplier, contractor, installer, etc.) that may create the perception that the arrangement is not at arm's length? Yes No

If yes, please provide details, including the name and business entity details of the relationship/benefit, and what actions you have taken to address the perception.
